CAREFLITE RELOCATES ITS GROUND AMBULANCE DIVISION TO GARLAND

December 6, 2005 – Grand Prairie, Texas ---- CareFlite is pleased to announce that it has relocated its Dallas based ground ambulance division to Garland, Texas. This includes critical and non-critical ground ambulances, and non-medical stretcher and wheelchair vans.

The move will position these services in a more centralized location to better serve CareFlite's customers and the growing areas of Dallas. "We're excited about the move to Garland," said Mark Kessler, director of ground services. "The new location is not only beneficial to our customers and patients, but to CareFlite as well. It will allow us better strategic positioning of our ground units throughout the Dallas area."

CareFlite's ground ambulance service was previously housed at Love Field Airport in Dallas.

Serving the community since 1979, CareFlite, the only nonprofit and CAMTS accredited, full-service medical transportation provider in North Central Texas, provides emergency medical helicopter transport to more than 100 counties within a 150-mile radius of the Dallas/Fort Worth Metroplex and fixed wing air ambulance service nationwide. Other CareFlite programs include ground ambulance service, specialty care ground transport, 911 emergency services, continuing education programs, and a community service bicycle team.

CareFlite is sponsored by Baylor Health Care System, Methodist Health System, Texas Health Resources, JPS Health Network, and Parkland Health and Hospital System.
